M&A Update

M&A Commentary: M&A transaction activity in the roofing industry has experienced steady growth since 2018 and has remained over the 6-year average in 2021, 2022, and 2023. The number of roofing M&A deals has increased by 116.7% over the past 6 years. YTD in 2024, deal count is around where 2023 numbers were, so roofing transactions can be expected to pass above the 6-year average once again this year.

Performance: The COVID-19 pandemic shifted demand, reducing commercial but boosting residential demand. Demand is expected to normalize post-pandemic. Eco-friendly roofing alternatives, like heat-reflective materials and solar panels, reshaped the industry, increasing the need for specialized contractors. Post-pandemic economic rebound will likely spur corporate profits, construction contracts, and demand for roofing contractors due to industrial expansion and heightened construction.

Industry Structure

The Southeast is the largest region for roofing contractors. The region, especially Florida, is subject to volatile weather conditions. This means frequent storms and floods will damage housing, leading to more roofing renovation. Additionally, the Southeast is the most popular place in America to retire, leading to more housing starts and in turn, more roofing projects.

State	Revenue (billions)	Business Count
Florida	$ 6.7	6,397
Georgia	$ 1.8	2,655
North Carolina	$ 1.4	2,633
Virginia	$ 1.3	1,884
South Carolina	$ 0.8	932
Alabama	$ 0.4	851

Credit Market Update

Overview: In the first three months of 2024, the U.S. economy remained resilient despite short-term rates sitting close to 20-year highs. The Federal Reserve will be cautious with the timing and magnitude of the anticipated rate cuts. The consensus is that the Fed will cut by 25bps in June, with more cuts later in the year. As the year progresses, the easing of monetary policy from the Federal Reserve and a soft landing for the U.S. economy have the potential to brighten credit conditions.
